Song, "America" by entire assembly.

The members of the Maryville Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will hold a special flag day program at their meeting at the home of Mrs. L. M. Eek tomorrow afternoon. Girl Scouts under the direction of Mrs. John Arthur Noid will give a program. People of Maryville are asked to display their flags tomorrow.

"Jesus Had No Place for the Weakling"

The Savior Himself of Manly Physique and Not Effeminate, Rev. W. N. Dewar Declares.

"The pen of the poet and the brush of the artist have shrouded Jesus with the obscurity of effeminacy. The picture they give us is without manhood," the Rev. W. N. Dewar of the First Presbyterian Church told his hearers yesterday in his sermon on "Counting the Cost."

"From the physical standpoint we have lost the real Jesus—we need to recover him," the minister declared. "His was not the sickly frame of the artist's vision, but the manly physique that fits well the pen portrait of evangelists who detail His career as a Man's Man—a man among men."

"We see how seriously Jesus thought about his work and how careful He was in his choice of workmen. There are multitudes eager to follow if given half a chance—but ability, staying power, driving force, the capacity for toil and suffering are the things that count. There is no place in his program for the moral and spiritual weakling—such a man would imperil the success of His cause and hinder His work."

"The popularity of the work is not the chief concern of Jesus. It is easy to get a following but that is no assurance that the work will find a solid foundation and an everlasting perpetuation."

"Better to begin right than to begin big. Better a few choice men of stalwart heart and spirit than a multitude of dependents and hangers-on. Therefore the challenge, 'Count the cost.' This is a difficult thing and demands 'thy life, thy soul, thy all.'"

"With the coming of Jesus into the world there has come also a new type of strength and courage and wisdom. Our big failure is our failure to count the cost and launch out into the deep things implied in the spiritual kingdom Jesus came to found in the world. "Whenever the time comes in which we are capable of a complete self-render to His spirit, His will and His program of life—that time will mark a new beginning for the world and the souls of men."

Miss Grace Dietz has been elected to a position in commercial department of the Shawnee High School at Merriam, Kan., a suburb of Kansas City, at a salary of $1550 for the term of nine months. Miss Dietz returned last Thursday from Louisville, N. C., where she taught last year.

Mrs. George Murray, jr., of Trenton, spent a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Aley. She was accompanied by Mrs. Maud Shockey of Trenton, who visited here and in Elmo.

"Swabbing" of Oil Well Not Completed

Work of Exhausting Water From Hole Near Quitman to Continue When Roads Permit.

"Swabbing" of the Quitman Gas and Oil Company's well No. 2 began last week and will be continued this week, George Rose, contractor, said today.

Mr. Rose said he was unable to get out to the well today but thought a trip to the well could be made tomorrow.

Most of the 1100 feet of water had been bailed out of the well by Friday night, he said. It may take about a week to finish the swabbing process, by which the company officials hope to exhaust the water and draw back the oil believed to have been forced into the sand by water pressure. If there is a sufficient showing of oil when the swabbing is completed, the sand will be "shot."

MAY CHANGE NO. 18 ROUTE

PLANNED WITH RAILROAD CROSSING
PLANNED WITH RAILROAD CROSSING.

COURT DEFERS CLAIMS

Road May Be Made to Run Block South of Main Street in Burlington Junction.

The chief engineer of the state highway commission is not satisfied with the survey of state highway No. 18, a secondary road, crossing the Wabash railroad track in Burlington Junction, and this may cause a change in the route or necessitate an overhead crossing, C. J. Bussjaeger, right of way man for the department, told the county court Saturday.

The court met late Saturday afternoon, and reviewed claims made by property owners whose land would be taken by the new route of No. 18 through the west of Burlington Junction, but made no definite decisions. The court, however, has decided to go ahead with buying the necessary land and has designated Mr. Bussjaeger to make what settlements he can with the property owners.

Claims totaling $12,000 had been filed, but they were reduced to between $7,000 and $8,000 by the court. The present course of the proposed road would place the highway through the main street of Burlington Junction and then take a southwesterly course through Cleveland, a suburb of the town and for a distance southwest.

Fred Wright, county clerk, stressed the fact this morning that according to the law, No. 18 is made a secondary road and must go through Burlington Junction. The money appropriated for secondary roads can only be used for secondary roads, and not on U. S. Highway No. 71, as some have presumed.

Should the chief engineer decide upon a new course for a road, it probably would run a block south of the main street in Burlington Junction and curve off to the southwest to as to make the crossings of the Burlington and Wabash railroads closer than the survey now calls for. It would also eliminate the necessity of removing about four houses which the present right-of-way would take, and might lessen the damages claimed by the property owners. The highway department is expected to make a decision this week regarding the survey and Mr. Bussjaeger, who conferred with the court Saturday, is expected to be here this week to make settlements with the property owners.

Kansas City Invites Colonel Lindbergh

Flier to Be Asked to Fly Last Plane
From Old Flying Field and First
From New Airport.

Kansas City, June 13.—Colonel Lindbergh will be invited to be present at the dedication of the new Kansas City Airport June 30.

It is planned that Lindbergh will fly the last plane to leave Richards field and be the first flier to land on the new Kansas City Airport.

Visitors from Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Van Develde and daughter, Daphene, of Calgary, Canada, came Saturday evening to spend the summer with Mrs. Van Develde's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Colwell. The visitors motored through.

John Murrin spent the week end in Atchison, Kan., with his son, Dr. J. C. Murrin, and family.

INJUNCTION TO BE DISMISSED

JUDGE RULES FOR DEFENSE IN SKIDMORE CASE.

OBJECT TO CLOSINGS

Abandonment Of Rural Schools A Cause
Of "Fights," Court Is Told. — Illegality Denied.

Monday, August 1, has been set for a special session of circuit court for the hearing of the Northwest Bank of Burlington Junction and the Bank of Hopkins preferred claims.

This was announced by W. R. Tilson, circuit clerk, this afternoon. Preferred claims have been filed by attorneys for both defunct institutions.

BULLETIN.

Shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon, Judge John M. Dawson, finding for the defendants, refused to make permanent the temporary injunction setting aside the election by which part of the Skidmore consolidated school district was transferred to the Graham district. The decision also permits the election at which the bond issue of $75,000 for a new school building will be submitted again.

Attorneys for the objectors announced their intention of filing an appeal.

Abandonment of rural schools in newly formed consolidated schools has been the cause of all school "fights," Judge A. M. Tibbels of Mound City told Judge John M. Dawson in the closing argument of the Skidmore school injunction hearing.

Arguments were begun about 10 o'clock this morning by Fred Harvey, speaking for the petitioners, who seek a permanent injunction to declare illegal the detaching of a portion of the Skidmore district and transferring of it to the Graham consolidated district.

Evidence was finished at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon after a day and a half of questioning, and court adjourned until this morning. In his argument Mr. Harvey contended that the election to detach what is known as the Liberty district was illegal because of the failure of the Graham school board to specify in its notices of election in which building the polling place would be. He also declared only one petition, praying for detachment, was prepared instead of two, and that the Skidmore school board and Graham board should each have been presented petitions. A third point was his claim of fraud in the voting out of the district as the first means of successfully voting bonds for a school at Skidmore.

Randall Wilson, representing the defendants, attempted to disprove the charges of the petitioners, claiming the law had been followed to the letter, and that this court, the circuit court, had no right to decide in which district the detached portion should go; that the finding of the board of arbitration was final. L. C. Cook closed the defendant's arguments.

Mr. Cook recounted the history of the Skidmore consolidated schools, saying four attempts had been made at elections to dissolve the district, and five attempts to vote bonds. The school board found it was blocked in any move to build and equip a better school at Skidmore and took the recourse the law provided, he said.

Judge Dawson announced Saturday he would give his decision today on the injunction. The petitioners in the case are Vernon B. Ward, J. F. Kellogg, William Taylor, Fred M. Barrett, John R. Barrett and Elmer Owens. The Skidmore school board, the board of arbitration, which decided the detached district should go to Graham, the county superintendent of schools, and Graham school board, which has asked to be discharged from the case, were named defendants.

Miss Sebe Rowley, art supervisor in the Webster Groves schools, returned last night to spend the summer with her mother, Mrs. Sebe J. Rowley.

Dr. and Mrs. Roy Canon returned this morning from Bedford, Ia., where they spent Sunday with relatives.

Miss Helen Baker returned Saturday from Kansas City where she taught this year, and was accompanied by her brother, Richard Baker, of the St. Joseph News-Press for a week-end visit. Their mother, Mrs. D. R. Baker, drove to St. Joseph to meet them.

YESTERDAY IS COOLEST JUNE 12 ON RECORD

Maximum Temperature Only 69, According to J. R. Brink.—Week-End Rainfall Totals 1.68 Inches.

Unseasonable cold weather, accompanied by a slow, soaking rain since Saturday morning, has made the dirt roads heavy, retarding farm work, and postponed all activities planned for Sunday, but the rain was a great help to farm crops and gardens.

Yesterday was the coldest June 12 since weather records have been made here for the last thirty-five years, J. R. Brink, official local weather observer, reported today. The mercury rose only to 69 degrees yesterday. Mr. Brink reported, which is the lowest maximum temperature he has on his records for any June 12.

However, Mr. Brink said there have been colder June nights than last night, when 48 degrees was recorded as the lowest temperature.

Starting Saturday morning, clouds overcast the sky and let loose occasional showers during the day. A steady rain fell yesterday and last night, bringing the total precipitation since Saturday to 1.68 inches at 7 o'clock this morning, Mr. Brink stated.

The rainfall Saturday was .27 inch. There was .53 inch yesterday and .88 inch during the night and this morning.

Produce Building Contract Awarded

Assembling Plant To Be 50 By 75 Feet.
Of Concrete Blocks.—Ready
By August 15.

The building committee of the executive board of the Producers Produce Company today awarded a building contract to Logan Bros. of Maryville for an assembling plant 50x75 frontage.

The building will be constructed of cement blocks to be furnished by Gram & Son of Maryville. It will be located about 100 feet southwest of the Wabash passenger station. Work will commence immediately and the building is expected to be ready for occupancy by August 15.

F. G. Peters of Chillicothe, manager of the Produce Co., there, J. J. Griffith of Dawn, secretary-treasurer, and C. L. Dewald of Spickard, vice-president, were members of the committee who let the contract.

Large Crowd Sees Carnival Unloading

Despite unfavorable weather, a large crowd yesterday witnessed the unloading of the twenty cars of the Isler Greater Shows, carnival company which is to show at the Fair Grounds this week under the auspices of the Veterans Association.

The shows will be open tonight and through the rest of the week, regardless of weather, it was announced.

HAS NO FEAR OF THE CHAIR

CLEVELAND WOMAN TO TRIAL ON MURDER CHARGE.

SLEW SECOND WIFE?

Bride Of Three Weeks First Believed
A Suicide.—A Woman Attorney
On Each Side.

Cleveland, June 13.—The trial of Mrs. Helen Glazer was postponed here today for one week because of the illness of Mrs. Glazer and Judge McMahon granted a week's continuance.

Cleveland, June 13.—Mrs. Helen Shaeffer Glazer, the middle-aged woman who doesn't care "whether I go to the chair or not," faces trial next week, charged with first degree murder in connection with the mysterious "suicide" death of the 19-year-old bride of her former husband.

Three principals of the trial are women. Mrs. Glazer will have Mrs. Sarah P. Hedrick as her defense counsel, while Assistant County Prosecutor Evelyn Cohen will ask that the accused be sent to the electric chair.

Finds Bride Dead.

Ida Glazer, bride of six weeks, was shot last April 21, and at first it was thought she had committed suicide through jealousy of her husband's first wife—the woman now on trial. Joseph Glazer awoke to find her dead body in bed beside him, a small revolver in one hand and a note explaining the act in the other.

"Your first wife haunted me day and night," the note read. "I know I did wrong, so this ends it all."

The girl-wife was buried in Detroit, where her parents lived, and for two weeks it was not seriously doubted that she had killed herself. It was not until Glazer was shot about two weeks later that an investigation was started. The dead girl's husband told the police he had been shot through the ear by a strange person who spoke like a woman, but was garbled in male attire.

Note Badly Written.

In the investigation which followed several facts were revealed about Ida's "suicide" which had been overlooked before. The note found in the girl's lifeless hand was badly written and many words were misspelled. Here is the way the note actually read: "Your first wife haunted me day and night. I know I did wrong so this ends it all." Most of the letters were printed, and none of the characters resembled the dead girl's handwriting, experts afterwards discovered. Ida Glazer was a high school graduate and would scarcely have left such an illiterate document, the authorities believed.

Meantime detectives took Helen Glazer into custody for questioning in connection with the attack on Glazer. Suddenly she denied any connection with the shooting, and was unemotional when told that her own handwriting was almost identical with that on the "suicide" note.

Charges First Wife.

The grand jury returned an indictment charging Mrs. Glazer with attempting to murder her former husband and voted another charging her with the first degree murder of the young bride.

It was learned that Glazer never was legally married to Helen. The pair obtained a marriage license ten years ago, and although they lived together as man and wife until last New Year's Day, when a quarrel, said to have been over Ida, parted them, they never went through a ceremony.

Neighbors of the accused woman told the police they thought her "queer." They cited alleged instances wherein Helen terrorized women and children of the district in which she lived by playing the role of a "peeping Tom" while dressed like a man. She has been examined by alienists, but was found entirely sane.

Fails to Hear Shot.

One of the things the jury will have to puzzle over is why Glazer did not hear the pistol shot that killed his bride as she lay beside him. When he awoke Ida had been dead for more than an hour. A shot was heard by other residents in the apartment building, but not loud enough to create any undue excitement. The skin on the girl's head had not been scorched as it would have been, had she fired the fatal shot herself.

Helen Glazer is indifferent as to what fate the jury will decide for her after the two women attorneys have completed their cases.

R. B. Montgomery is in St. Joseph today on business.

Chamberlin May Fly Back If Byrd Does

Proposition Is Cabled To Flier Still In America.—Russia Invites Pair
In Germany.

Berlin, June 13.—Soviet Russia today formally invited Chamberlin and Levine to fly to Moscow to become the guests of the government.

If Commander Byrd flies to Paris and then decides to fly back, Chamberlin and Levine want to accompany Byrd back to America in their own plane.

Such a proposition was made to Byrd by cable yesterday.

Baden Baden, Germany, June 13.—Clarence Chamberlin and Charles Levine were seized by the enthusiastic crowd and carried to their automobiles.

COOLIDGE OFF FOR DAKOTAS

PRESIDENT LEAVES TONIGHT FOR BLACK HILLS VACATION.

A ROD AND GUN ALONG

On Hunting Ground Of The Indians
Great Spirit, He Will Find Fish And Game Plentiful.

Washington, June 13.—With a staff of eighty-five White House attaches, photographers and newspaper men, President Coolidge will set out tonight aboard a special train to spend three months in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

Early tomorrow afternoon he will pause for two hours at Hammond, Ind., to dedicate a war memorial there. Proceeding on his journey, he will reach Pierre, S. D., Wednesday morning to be welcomed by state officials. After a half hour stay there, he will go to Rapid City, arriving Wednesday evening at the summer white house.

Included in the baggage of the President will be a fishing rod and a gun—for he is going to the hallowed hunting ground of the Sioux Indians, where bears are not yet extinct and fish hop out of the streams to catch the hook.

Far off of the beaten line of travel, 14 miles from the nearest railroad, Mr. Coolidge will establish himself in an old 35-room hotel set aside for him for three months' stay.

This trip marks the first time a President has ever gone west of Ohio on his summer vacation, and will take the President further toward the Pacific Coast than he has ever been as President.

Land Of Indian Legend.
George Washington spent his summers on his Potomac River estate, and Abraham Lincoln sought relief from Washington heat at Soldiers' Home, three miles from the White House, but Mr. Coolidge is going into a primitive land fertile with Indian legends, where the warrior and squaw descendants of the first inhabitants tramp the highways in moccasins and wild beasts howl in the woods at night.

It is said that the Great Spirit called his children together from the far reaches of the continent before the white man set foot upon it, and informed all Indians that the Black Hills was not their hunting ground but his. They might tarry there on the way to the Happy Hunting Ground, but the "Pa-Ha-Sa-Pa" Hills were too sacred for their mortal feet.

One hundred miles long and fifty miles wide, the Black Hills reserve have been preserved almost in their natural state. There are few settlements nearby, and the gravel roads are cut through virgin pine forests. There is a game preserve and a forest reserve, one adjacent hotel at Sylvan Lake—but no golf course, tennis courts or yachts.

4,400 Feet Above Sea Level.
The Black Hills rise out of the western farm plains to a height of 7,200 feet, and Mr. Coolidge's lodge is perched 4,400 above sea level. It is said they composed a geological island when prehistoric waters covered the continent. They reach higher to the skies than any land from the Rockies to the Swiss Alps. They are set in the southwestern corner of the State, only a few miles from the Wyoming line and almost due north of Denver, Colo.

A gold rush was started to the region when one of General Custer's men, during his conquest of the West, found the yellow metal in one of the creeks. The stampede resulted in establishing settlements there, and it is yet one of the greatest gold producing areas. The (Continued on page 7).

CITY RIOTOUS IN GREETING

NEW YORKERS BREAK POLICE
LINES TO SEE LINDBERGH.

FLIES FROM CAPITAL

Medals Are Pinned on Flier by Mayor
Walker and Governor Smith—
Places a Wreath.

Even a Statue Cheers.

New York, June 13.—From Bedloe's Island, where the Statue of Liberty so far unbent from her traditional dignity as to wave a flag in her upstretched, torch-bearing right hand, to Central Park, where decorated stands were prepared, New York was decorated today for Lindbergh's.

Even the oldest policeman could not remember another occasion which has caused the patron goddess of America to enfold so effusively to wave the Star Spangled Banner.

New York, June 13.—New York today received Charles Lindbergh as its hero in the greatest welcome this city has ever given to any man.

Lindbergh flew here from Washington, alighting in the harbor. He was brought to shore through a line of hundreds of whistling, saluting boats.

For five minutes, police fought back crowds to give him a chance to land. When the thousands saw Lindbergh was ashore, they could not be restrained. They surged through police lines as if none existed. Two hundred mounted police charged the crowd at full tilt, their rearing horses threatening to trample the people, but it took five minutes to make even a sign of a path ahead of Lindbergh's car. Then it began to move slowly forward.

Road after road went up from the Broadway canyons and echoed over the harbor.

Road after road went up from the Broadway canyons and echoed out to the harbor following Lindbergh's progress.

"Washington's reception was child-play besides this," Graham McNamee, radio announcer, shouted into his microphone as he witnessed the spectacle.

Greeted by Mayor Walker.

Block by block, Lindbergh's car and the parade accompanying it fought its way up Broadway. At the steps of the City Hall, Lindbergh alighted. The City Hall stands on the spot where George Washington read to his troops the Declaration of Independence.

Mayor Walker was awaiting him and as he greeted him the crowd went wild. Lindbergh was read the official welcome of the city setting forth his achievements and praising his diplomacy and tact.

Mayor Walker then made a speech of welcome and pinned on Lindbergh the medal of the city of New York.

Mrs. Lindbergh was presented and cheered to the echo. When the cheering died away, Lindbergh came forward to speak and there was another great ovation. Lindbergh said the reception in New York was greater than all he had received in Paris, Brussels, London and Washington put together. He said he was glad he had decided to return from Europe so soon.

May Be Slow, He Warns.

In regard to aviation, he warned the public not to expect too rapid progress. He predicted transatlantic airplane service probably within five or ten years but declared it foolhardy to attempt this without multiple motors, way stations and flying boats that would weather storms.

Lindbergh was given an ovation that seemed greater than any of the others. As he concluded his speech, Miss Anna Case arose and in her ringing voice sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Following this, Lindbergh paused uncertainly. Photographers insisted that the flier and his mother come forward for snapshots, and they obliged. The two looked at each other. One might have thought that, emotionally stirred, they would have spoken of the tremendous welcome. The dialogue was as follows:

THE SPIRITUAL LOAN COMPANY.

Building and loan associations have their uses, as every one knows. If well conducted, these uses are many. But the average citizen thinks of them as dwelling on an economic plane, with their foundations pretty solid on the earth. It remained for Roger Babson to enumerate their moral and spiritual contributions to society.

When a new home is erected the community is better off both spiritually and financially. The character of a community can be best measured by the percentage of home owners. The higher percentage of home owners, the better a community is spiritually, educationally and attractively. Hence, investors are rendering the highest possible service with their money when purchasing shares in a building and loan association.

Which is just as true as the fact that home building puts more money into circulation in any community and helps everybody along directly or indirectly.

"TO BERLIN"—THEN AND NOW.

When Chamberlain and Levine dipped low over Dortmund to ask their way, they called out "To Berlin! To Berlin!" Their cry was heard and gladly answered by people who pointed the direction to the German capital.

Within a few hours newspapers all over the civilized world were telling the story and repeating the words, "To Berlin!"

German planes were out watching for the American flyers and hoping to guide them to the great Tempelhofer landing field. All through that night the French government kept an air line lighted from the coast to Paris to help the flyers keep their path to Berlin.

Ten short years ago, how different the situation! At that time the cry "to Berlin" would have meant hatred and the desire for conquest. Germany was "the enemy" then, and Berlin was the hated goal of allied armies. A plane circling above the city would have dropped destructive bombs and probably been shot down in the process.

There is cause for great thankfulness that such was not the case the other day when those two Americans landed on German soil, expected and cordially welcomed friends.

One important reason for the high efficiency of the everlasting change in styles and extreme styles at that. A merchant doesn't any more than get a stock of goods laid in until the styles change and he is left with a lot of goods that are unsalable. The result is that the merchant has to get a better profit than he would on staple articles in order to escape actual loss and he is afraid to buy an adequate stock for fear the styles will switch and leave him with goods on hand. The result is what is known in wholesale circles as hand-to-mouth buying which is an expensive way of doing business. When the people are willing to wear an article two or three times without the style changing, they can buy cheaper and the merchant will do a much more satisfactory business.

A man in New Hampshire has a cow that opens doors, carries water and turns on the electric switch. At last! The very cow to sit on those condensed milk cans!

The favorite old excuse about the girls "not having a thing to wear" is almost legitimate these days.

The reason some people rent houses is because it's dangerous to sleep in garages.

Plain, Rustic, Very Comfortable---That's Summer Home Which South Dakota Offers to President and Mrs. Coolidge

State Game Lodge, Among Other Advantages, Has Reputation For Good Pies.

By PETER EDSON
NEA Service Writer

Rapid City, S. D., June 12.—On either side of the main entrance to the summer White House are the stuffed heads of two giant sad-eyed buffalo.

From one corner of the hall smiles the stuffed head of an intelligent looking mountain goat, white as to face, with sharp black horns.

Walls of the big library are hung with the sleek furry hides of wild animals which one day roamed the Black Hills, without ever thinking that their skins would ornament a presidential hangout.

In the big public dining room, built somewhat on the order of a screened porch, are stuffed pheasant—beautifully plumaged ring necks, mounted and hung in such a way that they appear to be in flight. They circle the room, and pairs and groups of four spread their wings above each of the tables.

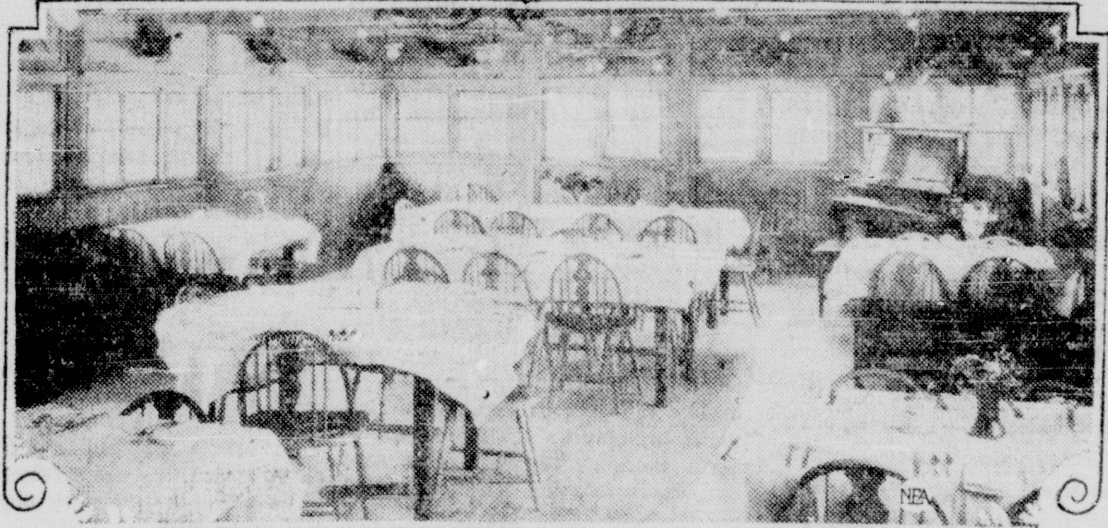

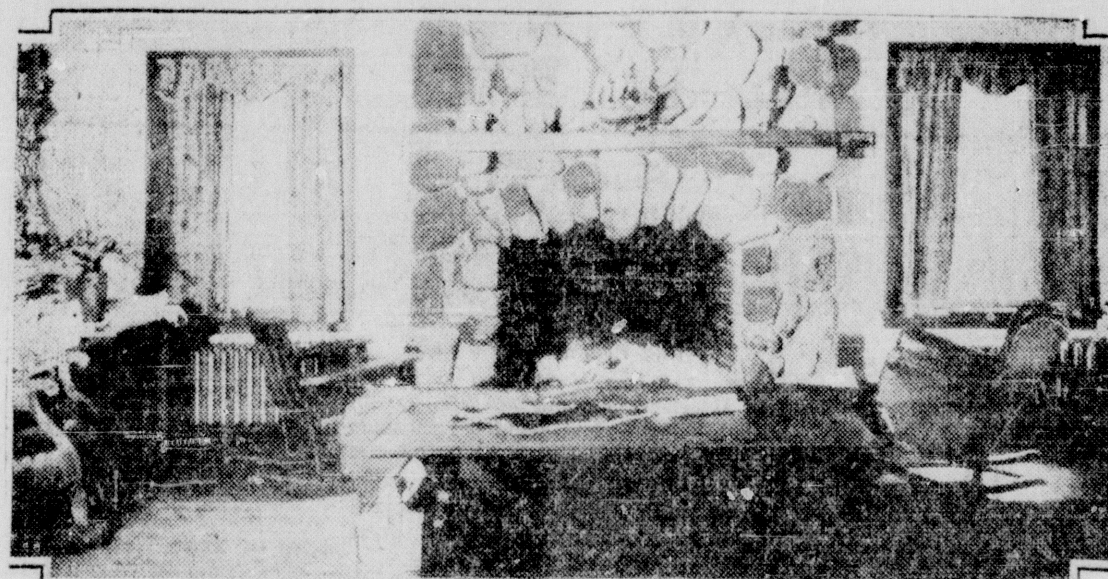

There are fireplaces—great stone ones—in abundance, built to burn big lengths of pine log.

The furniture is solid, plain to the point of being rustic in one or two of the rooms.

You drive thirty miles south from Rapid City, over smooth, scenic highway to reach this summer White House. It is known ordinarily at the State Game Lodge, and it was built by South Dakota to accommodate visitors to the Black Hills. It sits in a well-arranged valley of Custer State Park, said to be the largest reserve of its kind in the country.

You swing off the main highway, cross a broad lawn, and before you is a two-and-a-half story building with a natural stone porch running across the front. Squaw Creek meanders through the yard, and is off about its business in other parts.

Mount the steps, pass the buffalo sentries guarding the door, and enter the hallway. Here are an office and a telephone booth. To the right is the library, with the biggest fireplace in

To the left of the hall is the private dining room, tinted a light green and furnished with native hard wood furniture. This dining room will accommodate from 12 to 16 persons. It has a fireplace to take the morning chill off the rooms should company be there for a summer session of the renowned White House breakfasts. The wide windows of this dining room give a view across miles of scenery, and at times mountain sheep graze into the landscape.

The second floor of this main part of the building contains the governor's suite, which will this summer be the presidential suite. There are a drawing room, bed rooms, all with fireplaces. The furniture is simple, and runs rather heavily to deep leather covered rockers.

The third floor will probably be reserved for the servants.

Reaching behind this main building is a wing which contains the big state dining room, kitchen, and pantries.

The lodge, it may be said, has a reputation for its pies, which are made from fruit gathered in the orchard adjoining the grounds. They are such pies as good New Englanders used to eat for breakfast and thrive on.

City Riotous in Greeting

Lindbergh—"When, hot isn't it?"
Mrs. Lindbergh—"It certainly is."

Then they pressed back into the crowd, cheered at every step.
Progress Is Halted.

After the triumphant progress through the canyons of lower Manhattan, following the ceremonies at the City Hall, Mayor Walker perched beside Lindbergh in the back of the car as it moved with its mid-long escort through more and more of the cheering thousands.

At 24th street the crowd surged forward again and police again fought to clear the way. Finally the parade stopped for five minutes and it looked as if it might end there. Then the way was opened again and Lindbergh reached the Eternal Light. He stepped from his car, passed through lines of soldiers at rigid attention and reverently approached the memorial. He passed and laid a wreath on the memorial, the city's emblem of peace, and then went on to the park to receive another medal from Governor Al Smith.

Capital Bids Him Goodbye.
Washington, June 12.—The national capital said goodbye to Charles Lindbergh this morning and sent him on the way to New York.

Piloting an army pursuit plane, since his own plane was out of order, he hopped off at 8:45 a. m.

It was a beautiful take-off. Lindbergh went into a loop and came back over the field to watch the starting of the accompanying planes. He traveled over the Potomac river a mile to the west and then headed into the wind.

Education Has Three "C's" Minister Says

The three "C's" of education are control, culture and character, the Rev. W. S. Woodhull, pastor of the First Methodist Church, said yesterday in his annual education sermon.

Control, he said, involves control of nature, men and self. Culture he describes as appreciation and enjoyment of knowledge rather than the mere use of knowledge. Upon character developed in schools and colleges he put much stress.

"Education," he said, "is giving people more and more power as leaders. Where leaders are taking us depends upon the character of these men."

In true education there must be

A Reminder for Flag Day

Tomorrow is Flag Day, and below are some of the rules governing its use:

Every American should know about his or her flag. The flag should be raised at sunrise and lowered at sunset. It may be raised at other times, but should never be left out at night, except when it is under fire of the enemy.

Always stand when "The Star Spangled Banner" is being played or sung, and protest when used in a medley.

When the flag is passing in parade, in review, or is being raised or lowered, the spectators should, if walking, halt; if sitting, arise, uncover, and stand at attention.

When carried in parade or when crossed with other flags, the Stars and Stripes should always be at the right.

When the flag is shown horizontally, the blue field should be at the upper left-hand corner to the observer; when vertically, the blue should be at the upper right corner; when in either position, the flag should be fastened only at the top.

The statutes of the United States forbid the use of the flag in registered trade-marks.

The flag should never be worn as the whole or part of a costume; as a badge, it should be worn over the left breast.

In handling the flag, it should not be allowed to touch the ground, and never allowed to lie on the ground, as means of decorations, nor should it be laid flat with anything placed upon it.

The field of the flag is the stripes, the union is the blue and the stars.

When two American flags are crossed, the fields should face each other.

The flag contains thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, representing the thirteen original states, and a star for each state in the Union.

The flag should not be festooned over doorways or arches.

Always let the flag hang straight; do not tie in a bow knot.

If a foreigner wishes to raise the flag of his nationality in this country, he must first raise the American flag. If for decoration, the Stars and Stripes must be at the right.

The American flag, the emblem of our country, is the third oldest national flag in the world. It represents liberty, and liberty means obedience to law.

SALUTE

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

also four verbs, he explained.

"The first," he said, "is to know."

However stubborn facts may be they are the raw material of education, the granite out of which the edifice of learning is built. Still more important is the knowledge of those fundamental principles that determine the nature and the relation of facts.

"The second high word in education is 'to appreciate.' None can become truly learned who does not find a growing love of learning in his heart. The scientist must be thrilled by the infinite accuracy of universal processes. The historian must stand amazed at the rugged channels cut by torrential human purposes. The student of literature must be moved to tears and laughter at the mingled comedy and tragedy of life. Only he can know who can also appreciate.

"The third phrase is 'to use.' We learn by doing. The most intimate knowledge, the finest appreciation is found only in first-hand ways. We must handle the fact or do the deed. Besides, that which gives weight, resonance, life to learning is the ultimate purpose for which it is required.

One cannot attain education with no motive save the desire to be educated.

"The fourth verb is 'to worship.' The fact and force back of all others is God. The appreciation of the glory and righteousness of God is the keynote of all high appreciation. And the deep purpose to do God's will binds all lesser purposes into high ambition and mighty accomplishment.

"To know, to appreciate, to use, to worship is education."

SEE MAGIC YELLOWSTONE

Why don't you go up there this summer and find out whether there's any truth in the wild statements you've heard concerning columns of boiling, hissing water and live steam shooting skyward all over the place; and about the volcanoes of mud, the strange hot springs formations, colored pools, the cliff of glass, the bears and other wild animals, and that place where you can catch a trout in a cold water lake and cook it in a pool of boiling water without moving a step or removing it from the hook.

You can enter Yellowstone through one gateway and leave through another. We urge the use of the Cody Gateway in one direction. It gives you the thrilling trip over the Cody Road—famed 90-mile scenic motor highway—and costs nothing extra—Going or returning your tickets may be routed via Colorado. This also without extra cost.

The Burlington is the only road offering through Pullman service to both the Gardiner and Cody Gateways of Yellowstone, and operates the only through trains between the Cody Gateway and Denver.

Flag Day will be observed at the meeting of the Maryville Chapter, D. A. R., tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Lauris Eek on Grand avenue. The program will be in charge of Mrs. J. Arthur Noid, captain, Miss Leola Miller, lieutenant, and the Girl Scouts. The assisting hostesses will be Miss Louise Peery, Miss Elizabeth Leet, Miss Minnie Evans, Miss Eva Margaret Frank and Mrs. W. T. VanCleave.

Two Weddings in Vanscoy Family.

The marriage of Miss Mary Irene Billups, daughter of Mrs. Ona Billups, of Ridgeway, to Carl Hugh Vanscoy, son of Mrs. Minnie Vanscoy of Maryville, took place at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon in Ridgeway. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Gerald Wilson at the parsonage of the Christian Church, and was witnessed by the bride's mother and her sister, Miss Ruth Billups. The bride was graduated from the Ridgeway High School in the class of 1925, and has attended two summer sessions of the State Teachers College here. Mr. Vanscoy is a member of the mechanical staff of the Democrat-Forum and Tribune. Mr. and Mrs. Vanscoy are at home at 310 East Jenkins street.

Miss Esther Mable Vanscoy, sister of Mr. Vanscoy, and Cleo R. Trusty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Trusty of Pickering, were married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother on East Jenkins street. The Rev. R. E. Mcgraves, pastor of the First Christian Church, officiated. Mr. Trusty and his bride are former students of the State Teachers College. Mr. Trusty is a graduate of the Sweeney Automotive and Electrical School, Kansas City, and is employed at the Johnson Garage in Pickering, where the couple will be at home.

Mrs. Vanscoy was hostess at a 6 o'clock dinner last night at her home on East Jenkins street in honor of the two bridal couples. Others entertained were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Trusty of Pickering.

For Mississippi Visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Vickery and son, Hubert, of Jackson, Miss., were the complimented guests at a picnic supper given at the home of Mrs. Vickery's grandfather, G. W. Swinford, on South Main street last evening. Mr. and Mrs. Vickery and son have been visiting Mrs. Vickery's father, W. H. Swinford, and other relatives, since last Monday. The party included Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. George Lucas, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wright, Mrs. Rebecca Gray, Mrs. Garnett Gray Watt and daughters, Ruby Lucile and Virginia, Edward Gray and daughter, Barbara, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lyon, Ned Swinford of Arkoe, Miss Irene Swinford, G. W. Swinford, W. H. Swinford, and the visitors.

Irene Lowry a Bride.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lowry of Kansas City announce the marriage of their daughter, Floris Irene, to Mr. Richard Wright on Saturday, May 14, at Martinsville, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. Wright will be at home after August 1 in Martinsville.

MRS. RICHARD WRIGHT, formerly Miss Irene Lowry of Maryville.

The bride was graduated from the State Teachers College in the class of 1925, and was queen of The Tower, the annual publication of the College. She also is a graduate of the Maryville High School. For the last two years she has been teaching in the consolidated school at Martinsville. The Lowry family formerly lived in Maryville, Mr. Lowry being engaged in the implement business here for several years.

Woman's Auxiliary.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Baptist Church will meet Friday evening at the church. There will be a picnic supper in the church dining room for Auxiliary members and their families, followed by a program by the junior organizations.

Slumber Party.

Miss Beatrice Lemon entertained with a slumber party Saturday night at her home, northwest of Maryville. Her guests were Miss Virginia Larmer and her guest, Miss Dorothy Glenn of St. Joseph, and Miss Eugenia Arnold.

Mrs. Wallin Entertains.

Mrs. J. R. Wallin was hostess at a bridge party Saturday afternoon at her home on North Mulberry street, when she entertained sixteen guests. The prize for high score was won by Mrs. T. L. Wadley and the consolation favor went to Miss Olive DeLuce. A color effect of pink and white prevailed, and rose buds in the same shades were given as favors. Mrs. Paul Jones, sr., of Kansas City, who is visiting her son, P. R. Jones, and family, was an out-of-town guest.

Hosts at Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Florea were hosts at a dinner yesterday at their home on North Main street, entertained as their guests Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Yeo, their daughters, Emma Mae and Betty Lou, and son, Jack, Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Moore and son, J. W., Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moore, Miss Mildred Regan and Miss Alice Mae Whitman.

Printers Make "Pi" of Preserve Recipe

In Saturday's issue of the Democrat-Forum two recipes given by Maryville women were "all mixed up." The recipes were for strawberry preserves and Schaumtarte. The recipes as they should read are:

Strawberry Preserves.

MISS BERTHA ANDERSON
Recording Secretary.

Two cups sugar and one-half cup of water boiled until it threads. Then add three cups of berries stemmed and let boil twenty minutes or a little longer if it has not boiled continuously, but do not boil too long or it will turn dark. Put this in a container leaving the lid off for several days. The best results are had when only this quantity is cooked at one time. Pour paraffin over the preserves before the lid goes on.

Schaumtarte.

MRS. F. R. MARCELL
Treasurer.

Six egg whites.
Two cups sugar.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-half teaspoon cream of tartar.
Add the sugar to the unbeaten egg whites and beat for fifteen minutes. Add the cream of tartar and continue beating. Add flavoring; beat until mixture will hold its shape if dropped from a spoon. About thirty minutes beating is required. Pour the mixture into a greased and floured tin and bake slowly from 40 minutes to an hour.
Serve with unsweetened whipped cream. Garnish with marshmallow cherries or any garnish suitable to carry out the color scheme.

The applause of France, England and Belgium still a fresh memory, Lindbergh came down the gangplank at Washington into the arms of his homeland, to meet the greatest ovation the nation ever gave one of her sons. With him is Captain H. E. Lackey of the U. S. S. Memphis. A few pieces to the rear comes his mother, sharing honors with Mrs. Coolidge as the land's first lady. The sailors, with whom Lindbergh struck up a great friendship on the way home, regretfully watch him go.

Owners Agree to Repair Sidewalks

City Gets Action On Market And West Fourth Streets—Twelve Other Notices Sent Out.

It will not be necessary for the city council to make arrangements for the repair of the sidewalk located on Market street, on the west side of where the old mill stood, and the one on the north side of West Fourth street, west from the Tribune Building.

The owners of land abutting the Market street sidewalk, Mrs. Belle M. Williams, Edward E. Williams and Donald E. Williams, notified the council they would repair the walk, and Adolph Lippman and Richard Kuehn, did likewise regarding the walk on West Fourth street.

Mayor W. O. Garrett said today that the council met Saturday night but took no further action regarding the repair of unsafe sidewalks, other than giving him instructions to notify twelve other property owners to repair their walks or put in new ones.

The ordinance passed by the council last week to have the sidewalk on Market street repaired will be nullified when the walk is made safe by the owners, the mayor said. The council had condemned the West Fourth street walk but the owners agreed to make immediate repairs.

Mayor Garrett said that of the twelve property owners who would be notified today, three will be notified to put in new walks and the rest to repair unsafe walks. Mayor Garrett said it would be cheaper to repair all the walks now known to be dangerous than to have judgment given against the city for injuries resulting from unsafe walks.

Because of this he said the council was making every effort to get the sidewalks in the city in a safe condition.

The council adjourned to meet Thursday, when it will know further how the sidewalk situation has progressed.

To California For Summer

Donald L. Robey, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Robey, left Friday for Los Angeles, Cal., where he will spend the summer with his uncles, Donald, Paul and LaVerne Robey. He was accompanied to Kansas City by his mother, his sisters, LaRue and Helene, and brother, Billie, who returned home yesterday.

Move To Atchison

Mr. and Mrs. John Waitman who have been living in Maryville since October, will leave June 15, to make their home at Atchison, Kan. Mrs. Waitman left for Tinn, this morning where she will visit Mr. Waitman's family for a few days. Mr. Waitman is a representative of the Ralston Purina Company, St. Louis.

JUPE PLUVIUS WINS, AND NO TEAMS PLAY

All Games Are Postponed in Both the County and Northwest Missouri Baseball Leagues.

Jupiter Pluvius defeated Old Man Baseball yesterday in the county and Northwest Missouri without the veteran of the National Posttime offering the least resistance. Baseball was blanked at every turn and the next best thing is for the league teams to play off doubleheaders as soon as possible.

Maryville was scheduled to play at Albany, as was Hopkins at Union Star, Stanberry at Gentry and King City at Bethany, but reports this morning from each team was "Rained Out."

The same held true in the Nodaway County League, with Quitman scheduled at Burlington Junction, Rosendale at Graham and Barnard at Pickering. For the county league this was the first Sunday games had to be postponed.

It is different in the Northwest League, with some teams having two postponed games to play off before July 10, the end of the first half of the season. It was the first postponed game for Maryville. The Stanberry management announced today that King City will play a double header at Stanberry this coming Sunday and Stanberry also has a postponed game to play with Gentry.

To Try St. Joseph Damage Case Here

Change Of Venue Is Granted In Suit Out Of Which Charge Of Jury Fixing Arose.

(St. Joseph News-Press).

The damage suit out of which grew the grand jury indictments against M. J. Duvall, an attorney, on charges of jury fixing, has been taken to Nodaway County for retrial on a change of venue obtained in Judge Wilcox's division of the circuit court.

The case is one in which Wilbur E. Bean of Atchison, Kan., seeks $30,000 damages from the Interstate Stage Line Company for injuries alleged to have been suffered in a collision between a bus and a motor car driven by Bean on the Memorial highway June 13, last.

The change of venue was requested by Bean through his attorneys on the contention that prejudice against him here would not allow him to have a fair trial.

The case was tried in March and the jury gave Bean a judgment of $1,500. Then Judge Wilcox granted a new trial on his own initiative, declaring that information had come to him that improper advances had been made to a juror. Duvall was one of Bean's attorneys.

W. R. Tilson, circuit clerk, said today the transcript of the case had not been filed here as yet. He said the attorneys were given until the next term of court to file the case.

Two Classes Elect Members to Council

At the junior class meeting held at the State Teachers College this morning, Miss Rebecca Briggs of Maryville was chosen to represent the class this quarter on the student council. Miss Briggs is an active worker in student activities and served on the "Tower" staff last winter.

The Sophomore class met at the same period and chose two representatives for the summer quarter. Miss Hazel Brown of King City, and Ray D. Ferguson of Burlington Junction were the members chosen.

This and That

This from the Milan Standard:

The old home town is the one that observes your success in the city and wonders how you keep folks fooled.

There's a time in the life of every man when he wonders how some fellows manage to accumulate money and friends at the same time.

We read in a magazine that 30 is the proper age for a woman. If she isn't proper by that time she never will be.

The world would be a much better place to live in if a lot of people would learn to give in.

Clarinda Sends An Offer to Lindbergh

Flier Will Be Given $5,000 to Visit Iowa Town in Near Future.—Several Guarantors.

An offer of $5,000 to appear in Clarinda, Ia., at an early date was sent by air mail to Colonel Charles Lindbergh to reach him on his arrival at Washington Saturday, according to the Clarinda Journal. The invitation was signed by a large number of representatives of Clarinda's business and professional interests.

The Journal says: "It is hoped that Lindbergh will accept the offer, naming an early date, and that Clarinda will be privileged to entertain him. This action shows a very healthy condition of business in Clarinda when, on the spur of the moment her business and professional folks can set aside this amount to bring to Clarinda the best the world has to offer in the line of aviation.

"Clarinda's policy has always been to bring people to her instead of flocking away to other communities to see and hear them. She was one of the first to bring Bryan, when he was in the limelight, as well as Theodore Roosevelt, Lincoln Beachy and others of national and international fame. Schumann Heink, Mischa Elman, Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, Middleton, and others in the musical line have visited here."

Daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Dewar.

The Rev. and Mrs. William N. Dewar announce the birth of a daughter at St. Francis Hospital at 5:29 o'clock this morning. She weighed 6 1/2 pounds and has been named Marjorie Louise. Both mother and daughter are doing well.

G. W. Myers of near Burlington Junction was brought to St. Francis hospital here last night for treatment. He is expected to be released soon.

ATHEISM IS "UNNATURAL"

MITCHELL GIVES MEMORIAL SER-MON FOR LODGES.

TALKS ON "DESIRES"

"Immortal Life" Is Supreme Wish Of
Mortals, Pastor of M. E. Church, South Declares.

"Atheism is artificial. Men train themselves to resist the idea of God," declared the Rev. R. A. Mitchell of the Methodist Church South in his memorial sermon for Odd Fellows and Rebekahs yesterday morning.

The Reverend Mr. Mitchell chose his subject, "The Desire of the Heart."

"There are people in the world who train themselves to resist the idea of pain. This does not prove there is no pain."

"The country is filled with people who resist the idea of work. It would mean disaster if all would cease work. The fact the people resist the idea of God does not mean there is no God. The world needs God and knows it needs Him."

"No man invented the idea of immortality. Men have resisted it, they have fought it, called it foolish, but they have never overcome the fact that they desired it. We do not believe in immortality because we have proved it, we attempt to prove it because we believe in it. No man ever wrote a thesis on homesickness, had it published, and attempted to persuade the world to believe in the idea of homesickness. The fact of homesickness was created because there existed in the heart of the individual the desire to be at home with those he loves, be that home ever so humble. The proof of immortal life is the desire for it in the human breast."

Death is the destroyer of power.

The grave is more cruel than jealousy.

The grave never restores. Hence it is strange that man and woman should walk in numbers among the graves to bestow them with flowers as flaming challenges that victory does not belong to the grave.

The Bible is full of facts in which we are interested. Sin is a fact; Conversion is a fact; Immortality is a fact. "How are the dead raised up and with what body do they come?" is a question that agitated the minds of men for centuries.

The ancient Egyptian answered the question by saying the spirit return and rehabilitated the body. They put food, clothing, gold, chariots and weapons in the tombs of their dead. The opening of King Tut's tomb proved the error of their judgment.

The fact of immortality demands its answer of each individual. The only satisfactory answer, to my mind, comes with the analysis of desire.

From where do our desires come and what is their purpose?

Are they cravings born of the imagination? Do we invent them and then return the country to find something with which we may gratify them? Are our desires the voices calling to us from without? In the answer to these questions we may find the answer to the craving for immortality.

The savage is content with the crudest mode of life until civilization comes along and says "Here is something you may have." The whole art of modern advertising is merely propaganda designed to create desires for a hitherto unused and appreciated product.

The same is true of our intellectual desires. Man craves for knowledge because there is so much waiting to be known. James Watt watches the "kettle lid. He wants to know why it rattles. When he has found out he wants to know how this new-found steam power can be applied. Wireless stations were not built and then a search made for forces that would operate them. The fact that sound waves were discovered created the desire to employ them.

Man does not originate his desires, they are created by an existing supply. Once they have been aroused we never get away from them. This may be proven by throwing the kitchen stove out the back door and announcing that from now on all meals will be prepared over a campfire.

Hunger does not merely advertise the fact the body needs food. It proclaims the fact there is a store of food to meet this desire.

Spiritual desires proclaim the fact that man is not only a religious being, but that there are spiritual elements existing to satisfy these desires and that God has the wherewith to supply them.

Slave of Things.

"Don't be the slave of things. A view of King Tut's tomb proves that whatever a man takes with him, it is certainly not earthly treasures and possessions. Scientists found his treasures as his friends had placed them by his side. When we answer the call of death we drop our tools never to take them up again. We leave our safety-deposit boxes, never to open them again. We start on a journey that needs no provision of food, drink or raiment. The things for which most men slave are left behind. We may walk from this life with an unsmudged character if we will. Our immortal souls may sweep across the portals of our homes clothed in garments of honor, wrapped in the mantle of peace. These are the things we may take with us when we go.

"What is the greatest desire of your heart? Is it wealth? As much as you may insist, I say 'No.' Is it fame? I say no. Fame is fickle. The multitudes will crown you with laurels today and crucify you tomorrow. They did so to our Lord, they will do as much for you. The greatest desire of the human heart is the desire for immortal life, 'That I may dwell in the presence of the Lord, forever.'"

"Outward Trappings Are Only Mockery"

Rev. Guy L. Prather Talks to Congregation on Subject, "For The Master's Use."

"The word for Master represents absolute power," the Rev. Guy L. Prather told his congregation yesterday morning in his talk on "For The Master's Use."

"Paul belonged to the Lord, responded to his will, and found greatest delight in so doing."

"The Master's house stands secure with inscriptions indicating its stability. Yet in his house are vessels of honor and vessels of dishonor, ranging all the way from garbage pails to gold and silver plate."

"In God's kingdom as we see it applied among men, there are both sorts. High Christian ideals are far from realized in all Christian lives. Some strive upward with great success, others strive otherwise. Some are the gold and silver of beauty and honor and use, others are earthen vessels for garbage and ashes. Ideals embodied tend to become degraded. They are exposed to all sorts of wind and weather."

"Yet the inspiring possibility is here presented that a man may become a vessel unto honor, for honorable uses and places and of honorable materials, set apart and cared for, useful to the Master. Chemists have searched long for the magic formula by which they may transform base elements into gold. Paul became a chosen vessel. What glorious transformations we see daily! Ugly and invisible elements of soil and air and sunshine become beauty and fragrance in the rose. A rude marble tossed about in the play of Hottentot children becomes a sparkling gem in the crown of royalty. Perishable food grows into muscular strength, glowing beauty, ready wit, and noble service. Gargantuan drunkard becomes the honored apostle of temperance. Hadley the bum becomes Hadley of famous Water Street Mission. "Such were some of you, but ye were washed." Man may become a vessel of honor for the Master, or he may continue in dishonor and be finally dashed to pieces.

"The magic formula by which this change is wrought is very common place. Not by some mysterious trick. Not by wealth or culture or family or position. But by cleansing himself. From such contentions, irreverence, heresies, and lusts of life as are here mentioned; by a spiritual bath with liberal doses of antiseptics and immunizing lotions; and so thoroughly and ever and anon until the old dishonorable nature shall not return. "Have no fellowship with unfruitful works of darkness." Each man determines the class to which he belongs. Outward conditions may help or hinder, but his own decision and effort determine it. The indispensable sine qua non is cleansing. Outward trappings are but mockery in Christian service, if made to cover a corrupt heart. Our Master is worthy of the gold and silver."

Ravenwood Orchestra to Keep in Practice

R. J. McClain, a student at the State Teachers College, has been employed to direct the high school orchestra at Ravenwood this summer. The orchestra is composed of members of the last year's high school orchestra who wish to keep up their practice throughout the summer. William Gaugh of Maryville was the director last year.

The June condition of wheat in Nodaway county is 78 per cent upon the 13,130 acres going to harvest, according to the monthly statistics of E. A. Logan of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics and Jewell Mayes of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture.

The statisticians report the condition of oats here as 61 per cent, tame hay 92 per cent, alfalfa 79 per cent, pastures 95 per cent and applies 67 per cent of a normal June condition.

Corn planting in Nodaway county was 87 per cent complete with the season sixteen days later than the usual year.

In the state as a whole, the June condition of wheat is 77 per cent normal, indicating 20,648,099 bushels, averaging 13.32 bushels per acre upon 1,550,000 to be harvested, compared to 21,282,000 from 1,391,000 acres, averaging 15.3 bushels in 1926.

points owing to unfavorable weather. The crop suffered from excessive rains and standing water on level uplands and frequent overflows in nearly all river bottoms. Plants are yellow in low grounds but nearly all well-drained uplands look good. Wheat is heading and in the bloom in the southern counties with harvest beginning last half of June. Heads are not filling as well as in 1926. Best conditions prevail in western third of Missouri. Conditions generally have been lowered by rust, hail, lodging, excessive rains, standing water and overflows.

Oats condition is 69 per cent against 58 per cent in June, 1926, when the yield was 20 bushels per acre. Reported average below last year with seedings continuing to May 1, although got to the extent of March intentions. Early sown oats are good but late seedings will need favorable weather well into July. The crop is quite spotted. Temperatures have been favorable, but too much rain and cool weather have slowed up growth with some early oats heading short.

Hay crops are generally favorable. Mixed clover and timothy are 88 per cent against 63 per cent last year, alfalfa 82 per cent and 76 per cent and prairie hay 88 per cent and 66 per cent. The 1927 hay crop should average considerably above the 1.12 tons per acre in 1926. Much alfalfa in the best districts has been killed by overflow and the crop is generally less promising than other hay.

Bluegrass seed is good in the north-west counties. Spring conditions have been favorable for most grass seedings. Pastures are fine in practically all sections, 94 per cent against 66 per cent in 1926. Livestock are doing well on abundant pastures.

Corn Season Is Late.
Corn was 60 per cent planted on June 1, with the season 22 days late. Continuous rains from the third week in April have given much less than the usual time for preparing and planting spring crops. The season has been the wettest and the most backward for corn planting in forty years. Fields have plowed up hard and cloddy, requiring extra work to prepare for planting. Where corn has come up, stands are fairly good, with seed showing good germination, but the cold, cloudy, clammy weather and incessant rains have resulted in much corn being replanted.

Fields have been badly washed. The corn crop will be irregular as it is getting off to a poor start.

The planting of soybeans, cowpeas, kaffir and cane has been delayed awaiting the completion of corn planting, with the probability that soybeans, kaffir and "cath" crops will be increased over the 1926 acreage.

May conditions have been unfavorable to gardens and vegetable crops. Potatoes have rotted badly and stands are poor, with a considerable loss in acreage in the Orick and other commercial districts.

Missouri farmers need warm, sunshiney weather to permit the completion of planting and first cultivation of crops. Present indications are for more idle land than last year. Country roads are bad, interfering with marketing of farm products. The outlook is well portrayed by Wm. G. Christ, Kimmswick, Jefferson County, who says: "Things in poor shape, wheat yellow with rust, only 10 per cent corn planted, poor gardens, poor potatoes, one of the poorest seasons I remember."

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Money and Miss Alletta Devers, all of Skidmore, were Merveille visitors today.

CHAPTER 54

Winnie did not trust herself to make another appearance in the drawing room after her scene with Billy in the library. From her room she sent Viola with a message that she was suffering from a headache. At ten o'clock the entire party, with the exception, of course, of T. Q. and Mrs. Meadows, motored to the Country Club for dancing. Dal brought Billy home at half-past one, keeping her for another fifteen minutes in his car parked before the house, as he made ardent love to her.

She was so happy that she slept little, but when she did sleep, terrible dreams disturbed her rest, made her cry out with fright. Toward morning she fell into the deep sleep of exhaustion, and did not awaken until ten o'clock.

Mrs. Meadows, arranging flowers in the drawing room, told her that Winnie was ill in bed, and that she had sent word that she would not be down for luncheon. Billy spent two hours with her violin, practicing doggedly, as if she were trying to make up for all the hours she had stolen from her music.

At two o'clock Dal called for her and there were three happy hours of driving in the crisp cold air of late February. Because she was afraid of seeing anxiety in his eyes she did not tell Dal that Winnie was ill—she claimed to be. But when she returned to the house at five, she brought with her a bunch

Q. protested, lifting the soft, limp hand to his lips. "What in the world is the matter?"

"Sit down here by me," Winnie begged forlornly, moving her tiny body a little more toward the middle of the silk-draped bed. "Last night, Daddy Curtis, at dinner, it came over me all of a sudden that in just one more week we—wouldn't be dining together, you and I. Don't you realize, dear Daddy Curtis, that the year is gone? Just one more week!" she repeated desolately.

"I—Winnie, child, I have realized it, and I assure you that it makes me more unhappy than—than you may imagine, from my not having mentioned it, that in so sort a time I shall be a daughterless, lonely old man again."

He was glad that she was not looking into his eyes, for he was afraid that she could read there the lie that he had told her. For he had a vivid mental picture of that legal document which he had locked away in a secret drawer of his desk. And that document was the best proof in the world that, if Billy Wells would accept his offer of adoption, he would not be a lonely, daughterless man after the year was up.

He had not been absolutely sure until after the robbery which of the two girls—Winnie or Billy—he would name in that former agreement of dare let you do it! Oh, Mr. Curtis, you've been so blind, so blind!"

A fit of trembling seized the old man. He passed a shaking hand over his dazed, incredulous eyes. No, no, she couldn't mean—that! This lovely, young little thing, dewy with youth, made for romance—she couldn't love him in that way!

"I—Winnie, I'm afraid I don't understand!" he gasped.

A sudden, shy, intensely sweet smile flashed out at him through her tears. "I—I think you do!"

He gathered her into his arms then, fiercely, passion which he had thought dead for years surging through his rapidly beating heart. "Winnie, little sweetheart, Winnie! Do you want to stay here—with old T. Q.—as his wife?"

"Of course I do!" Winnie laughed softly, her arms tight about his neck, her flushed cheek rubbing provocatively against his. "Oh, T. Q., I do love you so! Haven't you—guessed? All these months that I've loved you, and called you my Daddy Curtis, and you were so blind—"

He was murmuring clumsy endearments into her ear, lifting the silvery blond hair with tender fingers as he did so, when he was startled by an incredible sound.

He looked at Winnie to make sure that the silly giggle had not come from her lips, but she was as startled as he or appeared to be.

"Someone is in the room!" T. Q. almost shouted, as he sprang from his seat on the edge of the bed.

"No, no! You imagined it! Or it was someone outside!" Winnie cried out in panic.

But T. Q. strode to the thick taffeta draperies that hung to the floor before the great bay window. When he yanked them viciously aside, Viola, the colored maid, stood revealed, a hand clapped to her mouth, her eyes rolling with ludicrous fear.

"What do you mean by hiding in here and spying on Miss Winnie?" T. Q. thundered.

Viola's frightened eyes rolled ludicrously from T. Q. to Winnie, but she kept her hand tightly clamped over her mouth. Winnie sprang from the bed and rushed to the colored maid, seizing her arm to shake her.

"What were you hiding in her for?" she shrieked in a metallic voice from which all sweetness had departed. "How did you get in here? When I was asleep?" Her pale blue eyes blazed into the rolling black eyes of the maid as if she were trying to get across a message which she dared not put into words.

"Take your hands off me, white girl!" Viola's hand dripped from her mouth with astonishing abruptness. "Ain't gonna get me in Dutch with Mr. Curtis, you ain't. You told me to hide in here and listen to ever' word the old fool said—that's what she called you, Mr. Curtis—the old fool! I guess I ain't gonna get myself fired on your account, I ain't—"

Winnie dropped her hold upon the maid and flung herself against T. Q.'s breast. "Don't believe her, Daddy Curtis! She's lying—"

"Who's lying?" Viola uttered a scream of animal rage. "I'll show you. Who give me this twenty dollar bill to hide here and listen?"

She snatched a yellow-backed bill from her apron pocket and waved it in the face of the white-faced terrified girl. "Mr. Curtis, she wanted a witness so's if you tried to get out of this she'd have the goods on you—"

"That will do, Viola. I understand," T. Q. said heavily. "Get control of yourself and go tell Mrs. Meadows and Miss Wells that I want to see them immediately in the library. Then go to your own room and stay there, without speaking to anyone, until I send for you."

"Yes, sir!" Viola backed out of the room, her eyes still rolling with terror. "Oh, what are you going to do to me, Daddy Curtis?" Winnie collapsed upon the bed, weeping and shivering with fear.

OUT OUR WAY.

By Williams

The council will also have before it the report of the recent International Economic Conference, and will probably take the steps necessary for convening one or more international conferences for carrying out the recommendations made.

Rhine Evacuation Asked.

Private conversations between the leading European foreign ministers which have now come to an established routine at every council meeting will hinge largely on the demands of Mr. Stresemann for Mr. Briand and Mr. Chamberlain to consent, if not to an early evacuation of the Rhine territory, at least to a reduction in the present army of occupation.

The council will also have to decide on the rather ticklish question of whether the League shall make public the recent report of its experts on the present status of the international white slave traffic. The bulk of this report was kept secret owing to the reflections which it made on various nations, but there is a wide demand that all of the facts in the case should be made public.

Still another matter of great importance will be the report of the League's Commission of International Jurists for the progressive codification of international law. After three years of preparation and consultation with all of the governments of the world, the commission has definitely recommended that the council now convene a series of international conferences for the codification into international law of half a dozen subjects which are now considered ripe for action. These include such questions as nationality, territorial waters, and liability of nations for damages to the persons and property of foreigners within their boundaries.

The council will also have to decide what it is going to do about the League's new three-million dollar assembly hall and secretariat, as its commission has decided that none of the 375 plans submitted by leading architects from all over the world is worthy of execution. The council will probably face the necessity either of ordering a new architectural competition or changing its jury.

The session of the council will probably last for ten days, as the agenda includes some forty international questions.

Disarmament Problem to Be Submitted to League of Nations Council, Meeting Today

Geneva, June 13.—The Council of the League of Nations met privately today with its formal and informal calendars crowded with matters bearing directly on the well being and perhaps the peace of Europe.

Geneva, June 13.—With the meeting here today of the 45th session of the Council of the League of Nations, the question of disarmament—or, rather, the failure to disarm—was scheduled to be the dominant problem.

The council will have before it two reports, registering the practical failure to date of all the League's efforts of disarmament, following over a year of intensive preparation and work on the subject.

The first report will be that on the question of control of the private manufacture of war material. Last year's League assembly insisted that an international conference on this question should be called before the coming 1927 assembly.

No Agreement Possible.

The commission charged with the preparation of the draft convention has been obliged to report, however, that no agreement on the question seems possible. The United States insisted that the control should be extended both to the government manufacture as well as the private production of war material. To this Italy, Japan and other countries absolutely refused to agree, with the result that no draft convention could be reported back to the council.

Even more serious than his failure, however, will be the report of the League's Preparatory Disarmament Commission on the question of worldwide limitation and reduction of armaments.

While the report contains what is purported to be a draft project for an international convention on the subject, it also registers the fact that on agreement was possible on the limiting of military reserves, on the method of limiting naval armaments and on the question of limiting armament budgets. In addition on virtually every other question, on which more or less agreement was reached, reservations were made by so many nations as to render it certain that the convention could never be launched and ratified.

Germany Demands Reduction.

The failure of the League's disarmament efforts is expected to bring out a strong protest from Foreign Minister Stresemann on the grounds that Germany accepted disarmament under the Versailles treaty only on condition that the rest of Europe disarm accordingly, and that this obligation has now been rejected. In addition the Germans insist that the proposed draft convention, even if it could be launched would only result in a stabilization of Europe's present armaments, while Germany insists that the first step toward disarmament must mean a reduction at least.

It is expected that the council will merely refer the two reports to the September Assembly, first in order to await the outcome of the Coolidge three-power naval conference; and, secondly, for the purpose of giving the Assembly an opportunity to air the whole question of disarmament and see what steps can be taken next.

Commerce in the Air

Arthur Brisbane, in the Chicago Herald and Examiner of May 18, says, "Standard Oil of Indiana announced yesterday the purchase from Henry and Edsel Ford of a huge, all-metal, three-engine monoplane 'to provide safe, fast and comfortable trips' for its officials to outlying oil regions."

"The time of a good oil man is worth more than the price of several airplanes."

"Perhaps Standard Oil will contribute to American flying on its own account, and build that 'real flying machine' which Henry Ford suggests."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been, and is, contributing to American flying in the interest of the people whom it serves by the development of special gasoline and lubricating oil for aviation use and by its program of marking air trails.

This company is interested in commercial aviation. It has proved in its own business that the air is an extraordinarily satisfactory medium of communication.

The Air Mail has been a tremendous asset to the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), increasing the efficiency of the organization. Other business concerns and individuals throughout the United States have appreciated this speedier mail communication it makes possible, as the record for 1926 testifies. A total of 17,345,960 letters were carried by airplane during the year.

This Company's investment in a giant monoplane is further evidence that the Company is deeply interested in commercial aviation.

The new all-metal monoplane, named the Stanolind, can accommodate eight passengers, has a wing span of 71 feet, and is propelled by three motors. It uses 46 gallons of gasoline an hour and carries fuel for a sustained flight of five hours.

The Stanolind was purchased to provide safe, fast and comfortable transportation to oil producing regions, division headquarters and outlying refineries.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is always on the alert for new ways and better methods of increasing efficiency. The purchase of the new monoplane is in line with its progressive business policy.

"Please come home, Daddy Curtis," that sweet, small voice had implored him.

of lilies of the valley which she had bought for Winnie at a florist's. In her happiness she was almost sorry for Winnie, for an obscure, unreasoning impulse to try again to make friends with the little blond schemer.

She was taking off her hat and coat in her own room, the door of which stood open, when she saw T. Q. Curtis, home from the office earlier than usual, pass through the hall. She went to the door to call out a greeting to him, when she saw that he was knocking at Winnie's door across the hall.

"Winnie may be really sick," she murmured to herself, sorry that she had not been to see the girl before. T. Q. looked worried, as he listened for the small voice bidding him to come in.

T. Q. was worried. Something in the tremulous words with which Winnie had summoned him by telephone had frightened him.

"Please come home, Daddy Curtis. I—I feel so bad! And I want to see you now!" that sweet, small voice had implored him.

If his thoughts could have been put into words as he opened the door, they would have been a prayer something like this: "Good Lord, help me to do the right thing by this child who has been so dear to me this last year."

"Hello, Daddy Curtis!" Winnie's weak, sweet voice called out to him. "Thanks for—coming—so soon."

"Why, Winnie, child! What are you crying about? Do you feel so ill as all that?" he said with gruff kindness as he stopped over the bed and took her limp little hand.

"I'm not ill," Winnie's voice choked on a sob. "I—I just didn't have the heart to get up today. I—oh, nothing matters any more! I—I wish I were dead!"

"Why, Winnie, darling child!" T.

adoption. But after Billy's vindication, after the gallant, courageous way in which she had borne herself during that dreadful time, he knew that of the two she was the daughter for him. And yet Winnie—dear, soft, lovely little Winnie—after all, why not have two daughters? he asked himself suddenly. Would it work? He had not been a fool all these months. He had seen that the three girls were not congenial. Too bad—it had been a mistake to choose Nyda for the year of probation; she had never really been in the running at all.

"What am I going to do?" Winnie began to cry like a heartbroken child. "I—I can't bear to leave you, Daddy Curtis. I—I've grown so awfully fond of you."

"I've tried to be like a father to you, my dear," T. Q. said huskily. "I'm very glad if I have made you happy this year."

"I've got a father!" Winnie burst out at him, with a spark of anger. "I—I don't need a father, Da—Mr. Curtis. I—I—oh, I can't tell you how I feel toward you!"

The old man looked down at the convulsed little face wonderingly, then he bent to kiss the grief-twisted, childish mouth. But before his lips touched hers, Winnie drew back sharply, her eyes widening as if with fright, a trembling hand going up to shield her mouth.

"Don't—don't! You mustn't do that!" she gasped in a shaken whisper.

"But—why, my dear?" T. Q. asked in genuine astonishment. "I've kissed you often enough, child, and you didn't seem to find me repulsive before."

"That's it!" Winnie moaned, covering her face with her hands. "I—I haven't found you repulsive! I want to kiss you so much that I don't—I don't

NO WOMAN HAS SWUM FROM ENGLAND TO FRANCE.

DONE BY THREE MIN

Attempts To Be Made In "Sea-on"
Soon To Open—More Difficult
Than East-To-West Swim.

Dover, June 13.—To swim the English Channel from England to France will be the one aim of long-distance swimmers from all over the world during the coming "Channel" swimming season.

Only three times has this feat been accomplished, and never by a woman. Captain Webb, pioneer among Channel swimmers, swam from Dover to Calais in 21 hours 45 minutes on August 24-25, 1875. Thirty-six years elapsed before another successful attempt was recorded. On September 5-6, 1911, Thomas William Burgess, burly Yorkshireman, now famous as the trainer of the first woman to swim the Channel—Gertrude Ederle—made the crossing from Dover to Calais in 22 hours 35 minutes.

An American success followed several years later. Henry Sullivan succeeded on August 5-6, 1923, after battling the tides between Dover and Calais for 27 hours 25 minutes. Dover boatmen still talk of this memorable feat and declare it to be the finest swim known in the history of Channel attempts despite last year's record-breaking successes.

It is safe to say that the first woman to succeed in crossing from England to France will achieve as much fame and notoriety as Gertrude Ederle did when the world hailed her as the Channel's first woman conqueror.

Much More Difficult.

Old-time Channel swimmers, as well as Channel pilots, declare it to be a much more difficult feat than swimming from France to England. They aver that the tides are much trickier, while the easterly of tides have never studied the Dover-Calais crossing as they have the reverse course. The latter has now become a mere matter of swimming to schedule, so well have the tides and currents been charted.

The Channel, therefore, if attempted from the English side, will still present its terrors and vagaries until the tides and currents on this stretch of water have been mastered by methodical study. It took over fifty years to map a course assuring maximum possibilities of success from the French side. Channel enthusiasts are now wondering how long it will take old timers to chart a similar route from Dover.

Three women have decided to attempt to swim the Channel from England to France this season. Mrs. Clementine Corson, of New York, who last year was the second woman to succeed in crossing from Griz Nez to Dover, has already established her training camp at Deal. Miss Mercedes Gleitze, London typist, heroine of many unsuccessful attempts, has signified her intention of making yet another attempt from Folkestone during her annual vacation in July. Mrs. Rose Weidman, widow of Jack Weidman, trainer of Lillian Cannon, of Baltimore, who made two unsuccessful attempts last year, is in training meticulously in the open sea at Dover in readiness for her attempts next month.

Male Contestants Lacking.

Male contestants are conspicuous by their absence. No mention has yet been made by any member of the "hardier" sex attempting, even from the French side. Perhaps, woman's success last year have disheartened them and they are content to accept the theory that a woman's constitution is better able to withstand the cold and difficult waters of the English Channel.

Warm weather broke early over England this year, and as a consequence

The Channel is warmer now than it has period of the year. If the fine weather continues it will be ideal for Channel attempts during July and August.

Mrs. Corson is favored by experts here to be the first woman to conquer the Channel from the English side. Whether she will succeed this year is the one topic along the coast.

Two-Ball Foursome Matches Postponed

The two-ball foursome tournament, set for yesterday at the Maryville Country Club, will be played next Saturday and Sunday, the tournament committee announced today.

Due to the intermittent rains yesterday, no matches were played.

Miss Helen Tilbury, a student at the State Teachers College, visited at her home in St. Joseph over the weekend.

Response Good for Intramural Sports

Entries Total 179 in College Program of Basketball, Baseball, Tennis, Horseshoes and Volley Ball.

Counting duplicates, 179 men students have signed for the intramural athletic program which will be carried out at the State Teachers College this summer. Five sports are included in the list to date. They are: basketball, playground baseball, tennis, horseshoes, and volley ball.

The lists were posted last week, and H. Frank Lawrence, director of athletics at the College, said today that additional time would be given for more signatures. The tournaments were to have begun today, but the inclement weather caused Mr. Lawrence to allow additional time for men to register for the sports in which they wished to compete.

Pairings will be made in all of the sports tomorrow or Wednesday, and play will be under way by the last of the week.

Seventy-three men have already been signed for the playground basketball tournament. Four teachers at the College: R. A. Kinnaird, U. G. Whiffen, Karl Kettering, and L. M. Eek have not made public the personnel of their teams, but others who will compete are:

L. Glenn, R. Beam, D. Johnson, G. Anderson, Watkins, P. Schneider, O. Wakely, Ray Ferguson, D. Smith, C. Wright, O. C. Tramer, O. R. Coffman, Roy Lester, Clifford Evans, Adair, Donald Tye, John Curran, Paul Smith, C. L. Anderson, Roy Ferguson, John Smith, Henry Iba, Donald Berst, Ete Beattie, Wayne Clemens, Clyde Gilbert, Thomas Turner, B. Lucas, H. to allow additional time for men to register for the sports in which they wished to compete.

Forty-one men have signed for the basketball tournament. They are: Jack Mardock, Felix Brown, O. C. Tramer, D. H. Dowell, H. D. Williams, F. G. McKinley, Brice Rickard, John Donaldson, George Adams, John Craig, Lloyd Glenn, L. H. Elam, Fibley, Doyle Smith, John Curran, John Smith, Oville Hedges, C. C. Adair, Donald Tye, Raymond Ferguson, C. Evans, L. Smith, W. C. Harr, O. Wakely.

E. Owens, Wayne Clemens, William Borth, B. B. Nichols, Leo Cox, L. P. Smith, Roy Lester, Donald Berst, G. T. Carroll, Albert Welch, Henry Iba, B. Lucas, N. G. Anderson, Roy Ferguson, Ora McPherron, H. P. Lawrence, and William L. Mapel.

Twenty-one men have indicated that they wish to play in tennis singles. They are:

Raymond Beam, John Craig, Dean Johnson, Lloyd Glenn, Fred Smith, O.

Adams, W. Clemens, Donald Berst, O. Wakely, H. P. Lawrence, Paul Jones, William Mapel, Ted Search, Raymond Credit, Adair, P. Smith, Ray and Roy Ferguson, Henry Iba, Donald Berst, and Eugene Wilson.

Eight teams will play in the tennis doubles tournament. The teams are as follows:

R. Beam and Paul Jones, Beattie and Finley, Gilbert and Hass, Glenn and Ferguson, Craig and Clemens, Lawrence and Mapel, Eek and Credit, and P. Smith and F. Smith.

Nine teams have been entered in the horseshoe tournament. Those taking part are:

Beam and Glenn, Anderson and Anderson, Evans and Urban, Tye and Adair, P. Smith and F. Smith, Lance and Clemens, Iba and Lucas, Craig and J. Smith.

Nine men have signed for the volley ball tournament. This will not be played until the others are completed, however, so there will likely be many others on the list.

Those who will take part are: Evans, Owens, Lester, Shaffer, Iba, Borsy, Wilson, Lucas and L. Smith.

BARGAINS EVERY DAY BUT SUNDAY

Now Comes the Easiest Washday of all

THINK of it—a washday without hand-rubbing even collars, cuffs and wristbands.

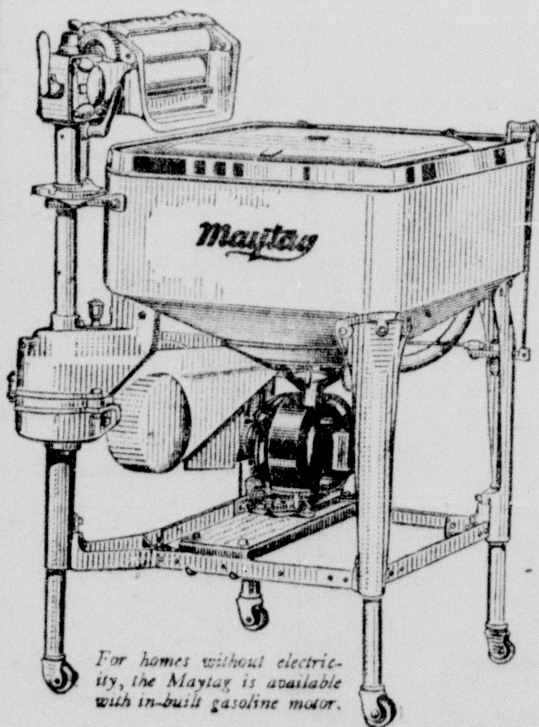

A washday without the constant changing of water because of the Maytag's heat-retaining cast-aluminum tub.

A washday that lasts but an hour because of the Maytag's big tub capacity and speedy washing.

A washday that is really comfortable because of the Maytag's adjustable legs that raise or lower the Maytag to suit your height.

Free Home Demonstration

Try the Maytag in your own home next washday. Use it without obligation or expense. Test its many exclusive features. Be convinced of its greater washability. Remember, if it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

For homes without electricity, the Maytag is available with in-built gasoline motor.

Maytag dealers everywhere follow the standardized rule of sending a Maytag to a home to do a week's washing free, and without obligation of any kind. This is the way all Maytag Gyrafoam Washers are sold.
